Presidential Primary
Election:
March 3, 2020

Maine has switched from a caucus to a primary for deciding how many of Maine's national delegates each presidential candidate earns.

A presidential primary is just like any other election, except only registered Democrats can vote. Don't forget to exercise your right to vote!

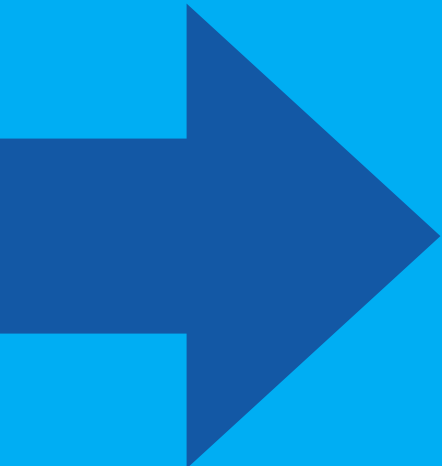

How will delegates be distributed among primary candidates?

- Sometime in April, the Maine Secretary of State will release official results of the presidential primary.
- Maine's pledged National Convention delegate spots will be apportioned to Democratic presidential primary candidates based on their shares of the primary votes.

Municipal Caucuses: March 8, 2020

The primary determines the distribution of delegates, but Democrats will still caucus in towns across Maine on March 8 in order to:

- Elect municipal chairs
- Elect representatives to their County Committee
- Elect State Convention delegates
- Meet candidates for local, state, and sometimes even federal office
- Learn about ballot issues
- Start organizing to WIN in 2020!

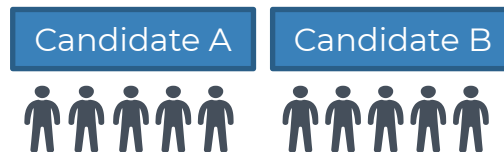

The municipal caucuses play a vital role in giving ALL Democrats a voice in their local, county, state, & national Democratic organizations.

Consider running for one of these local positions! It's easy, and fun.

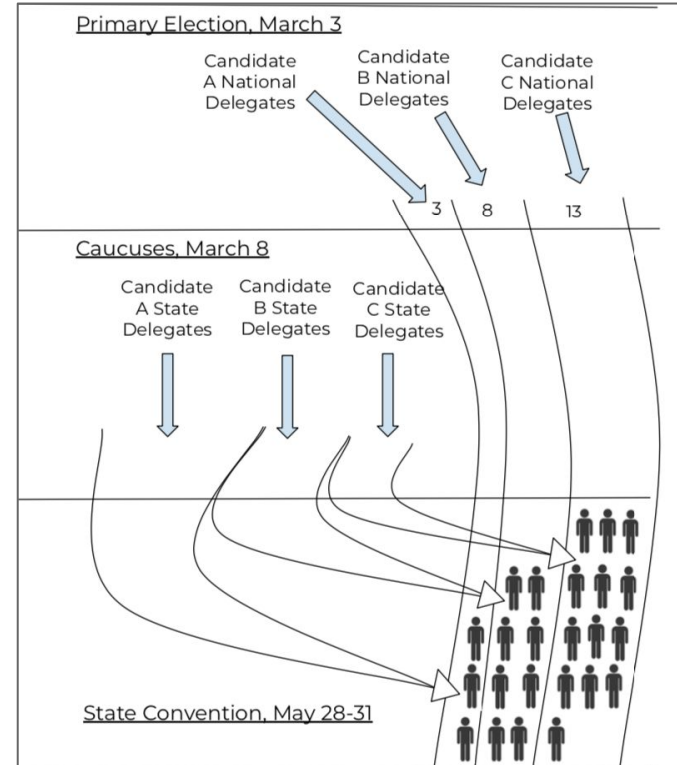

The process

- Caucus attendees will elect their municipal committee officers, and elect members of their county party committees.
- They will then split into groups based on their favored presidential candidate.
- After the number of supporters for each candidate is counted and their share of the delegates is counted attendees will have an opportunity to switch groups. If your group is too small to qualify for a delegate, you can join another group, or try to persuade more people to join yours.
- Each group will then elect the portion of their town's state convention delegates that their candidate is entitled to, based on their level of support.

Wait, if there's a primary, why are we electing state delegates based on presidential preference?

- While the primary determines the NUMBER of Maine's national delegates each presidential candidate gets, it does not determine WHO those delegates will be
- The delegates to the Maine State Convention elected at caucus will elect the actual people to fill the national delegate slots, voting only to fill the delegate slots assigned to the candidate they declared their support for at the caucuses

What if my candidate doesn't win any delegates or drops out?

If you were elected as a state delegate for a candidate who doesn't end up winning any delegates in the primary, or drops out of the race, you have until May 15 to change your presidential preference to one of the remaining candidates.

Presidential preference change forms will be available on the MDP website after the caucuses on March 8, and MUST BE RETURNED BY MAY 15.

- ANY DEMOCRAT can run to be a national delegate. You do not need to be a state delegate to run for national delegate. All interested Democrats are encouraged to run!

How to qualify as a national delegate candidate

- Space at the State Convention to hang up campaign signs

Representation Goals

The goal is to do our best to make sure Maine's delegation to the national convention looks like Maine Democrats. Candidates for national delegate who meet one or more of these goals may pick as many as apply to them.

African American	Asian/ Pacific Islander	Hispanic/ Latinx	Native American	LGBTQ+	People w/ disabilities	Youth
1	1	1	1	7	4	7

These are goals, not quotas. We need to do our very best to meet or exceed these goals to bring a diverse delegation to Milwaukee.

Running to be a delegate, Q&A

Q. Can I run as more than one type of delegate?

A. Yes! E.g. One person can run to be a Congressional District and At-Large delegate (but they can only win one)

Q. Can a person qualify for more than one of the representation goal categories?

A. Yes! E.g. disabled and young, Hispanic and transgender, Asian and gay

Q. If I don't fit any of those representation goal categories, can I still run and win?

A. Yes! While we seek to elevate these under-represented groups, that does not exclude others

Convention Costs

- National delegates are responsible for the cost of attending the National Convention.
- The DNC usually partners with an airline to offer discounts, and hotel rooms are booked in blocks for each state delegation to reduce the expense.
- If cost is a barrier for you, many national delegates have been able to fundraise to meet Convention costs. The MDP may be able to offer limited assistance.

Getting There

- Make reservations as soon as you can. Roundtrip flights from Portland to Milwaukee are currently around $750.
- Typically, you fly in on Sunday to Milwaukee Airport, and fly out Friday.
- Keep an eye out for package deals from the DNC.

Staying There

- The DNC has already booked a block of rooms near the convention site for the Maine delegation.
- It is HIGHLY recommended you stay with the delegation to save costs and ensure you get your credentials each day.
- Rooms will cost $400/night, with a 4 night minimum. Costs can be reduced by sharing a room with other delegates.

Friends and Family

- Friends and family will be responsible for their own separate lodging.
- Unless they get their own credentials as a guest or volunteer, they will not be able to attend the Convention.
